I'm not robot

reCAPTCHA

I am not robot!

Notably, its versatility encompasses Right Click on Package → Go to New → Calculation View. A calculation view is a graphical object that describes all the data processing steps from raw data to the final, consumable output. In the Data Category dropdown list, select CUBE. Calculation view in SAP HANA is the most important type of information view as it enables you to perform advanced designing operations on the data. In an SQL-based analytic privilege, these restrictions are specified as filter conditions that are fully SQL based Browse to the src folder, right-click it and choose New Calculation View. It begins by explaining what a calculation view is and how it can be used to combine data and logic from tables This document discusses how to create a calculation view in SAP HANA using the graphical interface. The key data modeling object in SAP HANA is the calculation view. Common data processing steps include filtering data, combining data, aggregating data, calculating new values, converting valuesThe SAP HANA Development perspective. You can apply advanced A Calculation View stands as a pivotal information model within the SAP HANA migration database, facilitating intricate data segmentations. This action displays the screen shown in Figure 4 Calculation View. The first calculation view is a plain graphical view. Common data processing steps include filtering data, combining data, aggregating data, calculating new values, converting values To create a new graphical calculation view, right click on your package and select New-> Calculation view from the context menu as shown. The below window pops up asking for a technical name and a label. The Name is important and should be a meaningful technical name as per your project naming convention whereas the label is just a description Calculation View Step by StepFree download as Word Doc.doc /.docx), PDF File.pdf), Text File.txt) or read online for free. Enter View name, Description and choose view type as Generate a single document that captures all details of a calculation view CREATE STRUCTURED PRIVILEGE Statement (Access Control) An analytic privilege consists of a set of restrictions against which user access to a particular attribute view, analytic view, calculation view, or SQL view is verified. When you click on Calculation View, New Window will open. You can create a star join with data category as CUBE or SQL Access Only only SAP Consultant (PDF) SAP HANA Platform SPSSAP HANA Modeling Guide For SAP HANA Studio Content 현준 김 no longer supports Internet Explorer Calculation View. Enter the details for the new calculation view. The key data modeling object in SAP HANA is the calculation view. Note. A calculation view is a graphical object that describes all the data processing steps from raw data to the final, consumable output. Right-click your development package and select New and then Calculation View as shown in FigureFigureDialog to choose a calculation view. In the Name field, enter the name of the calculation view.