

I'm not robot

I am not robot!

Empowering writers to be creators—not just Stephen Bailey's Academic Writing is one of the few academic writing books that deal with core areas effectively—language, text type, academic conventions and the writing process. Packed with concrete examples, helpful visuals, and practical tips, the book is an essential guide for academic writing at the highest level. Write short, simple sentences. Rather, first get your ideas out in front of you, fast. This is done by giving simple explanations, authentic examples and useful practice. This text teaches academic writing skills such as simple outlining, parts of the basic essay, and patterns of organization. Includes index aims to introduce you to academic writing with a definition and the main characteristics and steps you can take to start developing your academic writing skills. The book provides students with an introduction to the diversity, complexity and connectedness of writing in higher education today. A standard structure provides a template to help. Beginning by examining the meaning, nature and importance of academic writing, this book also explains the role and types of evidence in the context of scholarly writing. Jeffrey R. Wilson's Academic Writing is a no-nonsense guide to the long and complex writing process. Other Books in the Series: First Steps in Academic Writing Basic methodology I: Process writing Write the first draft Never translate whole sentences from your mother tongue. Part I, a short Guide to Academic It would be challenging to use some of the critical reading strategies from Unit if every writer developed a unique structure. Pour out your thoughts in English, in the casual language of speech. Avoid trying yet to organize content. Packed with concrete examples, helpful visuals, and practical tips, the Fundamentals of Academic Writing is intended for beginning-level students learning English as a second or foreign language in college, adult, or secondary school. Stephen Bailey's Academic Writing is one of the few academic writing books that deal with core areas effectively—language, text type, academic conventions and the writing. The essential writing text to prepare high-intermediate and advanced college or college-bound English language learners for academic success. Jeffrey R. Wilson's Academic Writing is a no-nonsense guide to the long and complex writing process.