

I'm not robot

I am not robot!

Mr. Goon, the policeman, is hot on the scent too, and he is sure that he has the answer when the others are still utterly confused. Fatty The Five Find-Outers Mystery Series. Fatty's real name is Frederick Algernon Who stole the money that the old man in Holly Lane had so carefully hidden in his cottage, and where is it now? Something was happening in Holly Lane. The house First an old man had his money stolen. But Afterwards the Five Find-Outers said this was the most exciting mystery of all. It ranks as one of the best mysteries, very well constructed and very intriguing right down to the final chapter. It ranks as one of the best mysteries, very well constructed and very intriguing Who stole the money that the old man in Holly Lane had so carefully hidden in his cottage and where is it now? Fatty and the Find-Outers are on the case, but it looks as though It's one of those that reads well on the back cover: Money has been stolen from a bungalow called Hollies, and now all the furniture has gone too! So Larry cleans the windows of a bungalow on Holly Lane, where an elderly man lives, not realizing that this very bungalow Why did his furniture disappear in the middle of the night? Why did his furniture disappear in the middle of the night? Oooh, mysterious! But who will solve the Enid Blyton's 'The Mystery of Holly Lane' is a captivating tale that follows a group of young friends as they stumble upon a mysterious abandoned house in the countryside. The book is written in Blyton's signature style of fast-paced storytelling The Mystery of Holly Lane — This eleventh mystery sees a real return to the top for the series. The Five Find-Outers are too clever for him once again. Mr Goon is also on the trail and thinks he's ahead of the Five. The Five Find-Outers and Dog are Fatty, Larry, Daisy, Pip, Bets and Fatty's Scottie dog, Buster. But he's not. Then his furniture disappeared in the dead of night. Who stole the money that the old man in Holly Lane had so carefully hidden in his cottage, and where is it now? Why did his furniture disappear in the middle of the night? The house belongs to a blind old man, who has apparently hidden his savings somewhere in the furniture. Suspects are brought in nicely, and the mystery of what has become of the old man's money is resolved in a very ingenious way mystery of the holly lane. Fatty and the other Find-Outers have a long list of suspects, and a few clues, but this latest mystery just won't be solved! When the man reports the money stolen, the Find Outers initially believe it to be a simple robbery, but then in the middle of the night, all the old man's furniture is mysteriously spirited away as well. Fatty The Mystery of Holly Lane — This eleventh mystery sees a real return to the top for the series. Really good The Mystery of Holly Lane by Blyton, Enid ISBN X ISBN Egmont Books Ltd Softcover the mystery of holly lane Bookreader Item Preview Pdf_module_version Ppi Rcs_key Republisher_date fiction, juvenile, mystery. Description: With nothing to find out, the children ide to get in a little practise and one task set for Larry was to disguise himself as a window cleaner and go to clean someone's windows.