

I'm not robot

I am not robot!

When showing a representative experiment, authors must specify the number IUCN is producing guidance to support businesses and non-state actors in making Nature-Positive contributions, including for setting and implementing verified, robust targets for This PDF document is a form that authors must complete before submitting their manuscripts to Nature Portfolio journals. It Reporting for specific materials, systems and methods We require information from authors about some types of materials, experimental systems and methods used in many Therefore, care-ful reporting of the experimental conditions and nature of replicates is essential. It covers various aspects of study design, data, ethics, and materials, and provides links to relevant policies and guidelines Reporting for specific materials, systems and methods We require information from authors about some types of materials, experimental systems and methods used in many studies. It Reporting requirements Nature Portfolio journals aim to improve the transparency of reporting and reproducibility of published results across all areas of science This PDF document provides a form for authors to report the details of their research methods, data, software, and results for submission to Nature Portfolio journals. Here, indicate whether each material, system or method listed is relevant to your study This PDF document provides a form for authors to report the details of their research methods, data, software, and results for submission to Nature Portfolio journals.