I am not robot!

I'm grateful that she doesn't describe intimate situations in graphic detail (at least in her Housemaid series so far). Her hair is chin-length, cut into a fashionable bob that de-emphasizes her double chin. Mrs. Winchester tucks a strand of shiny, golden-blond hair behind her ear. P R O L O G U E

There's blood everywhere 5 The Housemaid Freida McFadden, Grand Central, $Happy Place Emily Henry, Berkley, $A Court of Mist and Fury Sarah J. Maas, Bloomsbury Publishing, $ From New York City, McFadden attended Harvard University as an undergraduate. She practices medicine in the Boston area. She only alludes to it in most cases and leaves the details to the imagination. MILLIE "Tell me about yourself, Millie." Nina Winchester leans forward on her caramel-colored leather sofa, her legs crossed to reveal just the slightest hint of her knees peeking out under Nina Winchester and I couldn't be more different, but if she'd like to believe we're neighbors, then I'm only too happy to go along with it.
