Next. Surrealism is different from supernatural in the way that the latter insists on entities external of human mind, while surrealism explains those same entities as a manifestation of an unconscious mind. Acclaim for HARUKI MURAKAMI'S THE ELEPHANT VANISHES "Charming, humorous and frequently puzzling. The Elephant Vanishes [is] fun to read. By the way, the elephant is elderly, feeble, and lonely, spending his days in a zoo in a Tokyo suburb. My alarm clock woke me that day, as always, at six-thirteen." — The New York Times "These stories show us Japan as it's experienced from the inside. Surrealism is a common theme in most of Murakami's stories. The elephant was displaced from its native habitat in East Africa twenty-two years before the story takes place and comes to live at the zoo in a Tokyo suburb.
